

GOWNS, SKIRTS AND COMBINATIONS

At Remnant Prices Friday

The lots are small, but with the exception of a little muslin appearance from handling, and the fact that sizes are broken, the garments are of as much use to you as though you paid full price for them.

50c GOWNS, in sizes 15 and 16, for medium-sized women, made with tucked yokes, and finished with hemstitched ruffles. Choice. 39c

SKIRTS AND COMBINATIONS—75c to $1.00 values. The skirts are of a good quality muslin, trimmed with tulle lace and tucks, finished with dust ruffle. The combinations—drawers and corset cover—are in sizes 40, 42 and 44; prettily trimmed with embroidery, with embroidery beading at waist and ribbon drawn through. Choice. 69c

Muslin Underwear Store—Second Floor.

SEE-SAW ON NOISE

Rival Fans Watching Star Scoreboard Enjoy Tie Game.

FIRST GLAD, THEN SAD

Great Throng Runs Gamut of Emotions During Contest.

GOOD NATURE UPPERMOST

"Now, Will Mr. Stahl Keep the Automobile," Woman Follower Asks as Battle Ends.

It was an almost evenly divided crowd of fans that watched yesterday's great game at Boston as it was flashed on The Star's electric scoreboard. Boston rallies were received with cheers, yells and shouts, and then, when the Giants made the grand rally in the eighth and drove Collins to the bomb proof, the New York supporters threw their hats into the air and shrieked themselves hoarse.

The crowd on the 11th street side of The Star building took up all the sidewalk space except a narrow lane which was left open for pedestrians by the ceaseless efforts of several big, good natured policemen. Out in the street the throng extended from curb to curb, and from the Avenue up 11th street as far as it was possible to see the scoreboard.

First Chance to Cheer.

Boston's early lead gave the Red Sox adherents the first chance to cheer, and they made the most of it. The Giants' rooters were not doing much yelling in the first inning. But when Big Chief Meyers singled and sent Herzog in with the New York run in the second, the New Yorkers in the crowd perked up and emitted faint yelps of pleasure. Then, when Red Murray hit for three bags in the fourth, scoring on Herzog's sacrifice fly, those who were straining along with Muggsy McGraw's crew threw out their hats and yelled "Oh, you Stahl!"

Mathewson's steady work through the second, third and fourth innings cheered the thinking brains of those Gothamites who had felt that the game was over in the first, and when, in the fourth, Matty struck Stahl out, the cries of "Same old Jake!" reminded one of several occasions during the past season when the same remark was made by numerous individuals out at 7th street and Florida Avenue. Hooper's score in the fifth sent Giant spirits down again, but they rallied over when Duffy Lewis muffed Snodgrass' fly in the eighth and the succeeding batters pounced on Collins and drove him off the slab.

Pandemonium Increased.

The pandemonium increased as Herzog landed on one of Hall's straight ones and sent two more runs in the sixth, and the melee several perfectly good derbies were ruined and kinks were put in the tempers of Red Sox rooters.

Then the Boston cheering section had an inning, when Fletcher, who has been the candy kid in New York's error column, booted one and let Duffy Lewis in with the tying score. Manipulators of political convention cheerer, who measure a candidate's popularity by the stop watch, would have said that Boston had the best of it in volume and length of the demonstration.

Up to the ninth the crowd was quiet beneath their cheering, but when the pinches. But when the teams were by the ninth with a tie score, the buzz that ran through the throng sounded like the wind in the pine trees, and the usual number of wise ones, who always know just what the managers are going to do, began to rid their systems of a whole lot of bad guesses.

Merkle's triple to open the tenth, to the jubilation of the crowd, ended the game and the downfall of "Jeems" McAleer's hurling, but when Merkle failed to tally the Bostonians were not perking up business quite extensively.

Whooping Is Cut Short.

The Boston whooping was cut short, though, when Finch Hitter McCormick's sacrifice fly sent the Giant first baseman over and put New York ahead. You could see little glooms lurking around wherever two or three Boston fans congregated, but the glooms faded over to the New York camp, and in the afternoon a hit for three, and scored when Wilson, Meyers' relief catcher, dropped the throw home. Shortly after Mr. Phillips, ex-world's series champion, began the calling of the game at the end of the eleventh.

It was a big crowd and a good-natured crowd, and it stuck till the game was over, being bigger at the end than it was at the beginning. And when the game was over, the usual woman fan, who had watched the whole thing and had driven her escort nearly crazy with foolish questions, asked interestedly:

"Now, will Mr. Stahl keep the automobile they gave him awhile ago?"

"Thank God, My Boy Has Outgrown Ragtime and Now Plays High-Class Music and—Understands It"

Devoutly expressed by one of our clients who put an AUTOTONE Player in his home less than six months ago.

A whole sermon in itself and needs no comment to those who consider the refinement of home influence.

GET BACK TO BIBLE, WORLD'S GREATEST NEED

Rev. Dr. Little So Declares at Methodist Protestant Young People's Convention.

"No need in this world today is so great as it is the need to get back to the old book—the Bible."

The assertion was made by Rev. Dr. F. T. Little of Baltimore, Md., in an address on "The Call of the Cross in Back to the Old Book and the Old Faith," delivered at the convention of the Union of Young People's Work of the Maryland Annual Conference of the Methodist Protestant Church, now in session at the Rhode Island Avenue M. P. Church.

"The call of the cross," he said, "is back to the old book. Learn to commune with the Bible; commune with the Bible is greatly different from simply reading it. If you commune with it you get its spirit and its power. You never thought of before though you may have read the same words in the Bible time and time again. Live with the Bible; study it and pore over it. Then you won't have to have somebody explain every little phrase of it to you."

Incidents From Experience.

Incidents from his own experiences, in which he said great truths had suddenly flashed before him while studying the Scriptures, although he knew the self-same passages by heart, were given by the speaker.

Methods of increasing the interest and attendance in the Christian Endeavor societies were discussed by Rev. F. L. Warner of Salisbury, Md., who superintended an "Increase and Efficiency Campaign" for that organization. He told of the work accomplished during the campaign. Some of it had been disappointing, he said, but most of it was encouraging and he had bright hopes for the future.

Other Speakers Heard.

Mrs. B. W. Kindley of Baltimore, Md., superintendent of the elementary department, U. Y. P. W., spoke on "The Graded School and the Graded Lesson" at the session this afternoon. Rev. C. R. Strauss of Alexandria, Va., delivered an address on "The Problem of the Drone in the Hive of the Cross." O. H. Benson, specialist in charges of club work of the Department of Agriculture, spoke on "How Far Is the Church Responsible for the Amusement of the Young?"

Reports of committees and transaction of business will occupy a large portion of this evening's session, while a special musical program will be another feature.

Dr. John M. Holmes of Harrington, Del., will deliver an address on "The Heart's Ease of the Cross for Humanity's Sake." The "quiet hour" will precede the adjournment.

Wonderful Result of Inventions.

From Leslie's.

How tremendously patented inventions have contributed to the prosperity of the United States appears from the growth of industries depending entirely on inventions. In the generation between 1880 and 1910 the value of our iron and steel manufactures leaped from $207,000,000 to $1,377,000,000—an increase of 568 per cent. Between 1880 and 1910 the output of sewing machines grew from less than $4,500,000 to over $28,000,000—an increase of 542 per cent. Between 1880 and 1910 the production of agricultural implements increased from less than $21,000,000 to over $146,000,000—an increase of 598 per cent. In the generation from 1880 to 1910 the output of photographic apparatus increased from $142,000 to nearly $16,000,000—an increase of 1,084 per cent.

Taking Spring for Granted.

From the Atlantic.

When we go into the woods in the spring our self-consciousness leaves us and we speedily make ourselves at home. We take things for granted, and are not careful about trifles. A great many things are going on, but the spring does not distract us. For we have primal sympathies which are very good substitutes for intelligence. We do not worry because Nature does not get on faster with her work. When we go out on the hills in a spring morning, as our forefathers did 10,000 years ago, it does not fret us to consider that things are going on in the world that we do not know. The sap is mounting in the trees; the wild flowers are pushing out of the soil; the free citizens of the woods are pursuing their avocations without regard to our moralities. A great deal is going on, but nothing has come to a dramatic culmination.

Our innate rusticity makes us accept all this in the spirit in which it is offered to us. It is Nature's way and we like it, because we are used to it. We take what is set before us and ask no questions. It is spring. We do not stop to inquire as to whether this spring is an improvement on last spring or on the spring of the year 400 B.C. There is a timelessness about our enjoyment. We are not thinking of events set in a chronological order, but of a process which loses nothing by reason of repetition.

The hearts of the late Rev. John Robinson present the Methodist Episcopal Church at Sharpsburg, Md., with an individual communion set in memory of their deceased father.
